

WINOWATHA

AN INDIAN REVERIE.

"St. Louis! I love thee still"

WORDS BY Sarah Ross.

MUSIC BY
W.M. BARNES.

5

Published by the
FRANCIS WILLARD W.C.T.U.,
OF THE 31ST DIST. OF MO. 5206 Colé Brilliant St., ST. LOUIS MISSOURI.

*Dedicated to all those,
who attend the St. Louis Exposition.*

WINOWATHA.

Words by SARAH ROSS.

Music by W. M. BARNES.

An In - di - an maid - en not long a -
She thought how the hunt - ers with stealth - y

Till Voice.

go, Stood gaz - ing with tear - ful eyes, At the feet, Had crept o'er this self - same spot, How they Copyright 1904 by Sarah E. Pendergrass.

All rights reserved.

great Mis - sis - sip - pi's ma - jes - tic flow, Past a ci - ty of start - led the fawn in - to wild re - treat, As the mink and the mar - vel - ous size; _____ And sky - scrap - ing struc - tures and beav - er they sought; _____ How the elk and the bear wan - dered

glit - ter - ing domes, Seemed to melt in a dream - y
here at their will, How the buf - fa - lo fur - nished them

haze, _____ In their place then ap - peared the wig - wam food, _____ And she dreamed of the maids with eyes so homes, As they stood in her fore-fathers days. clear, By the young braves so ard-ent-ly wooed.

Refrain.

But she cried: - "St. Lou - is I love thee still, Though Still she sang: - "St. Lou - is I love thee still, The wand - er - ers made by the white man's will, Our tribes driv-en child of the for - est bears no ill will as the war - cry of back - ward from hill to hill, Rude - ly thrust from our her - i - tage

com-merce the pul - ses thrill, And she mar - vels at vast chang-es

dear; _____ Tho' the bow and ar - row have lost their wrought; _____ Now a frag - rance seems to per - vade the might, No more the war - dance the eyes af - fright, And the air, From the pipe of peace, as the spir - its fair From the smoke of the camp - fire is gone from our sight St.

blest hap - py hunt - ing grounds this mes - sage bear, St.

Lou - is I love thee still. _____
Lou - is we love thee still. _____

Carrie May Creas 1 1/2 yrs.